

PROJECT TRIBU

Project Tribu is an initiative aim program of Mabalacat City College Military Cadet Officers and PADAYAN Organization in empowering the Aetas, an indigenous group in the Philippines, through education. The project aims to promote ethical values and student mobility among the Aetas in Sitio Haduan, Mabalacat City, Pampanga. The project will be executed through three main activities: "Oplan Pagbasa at KwentuJuan," "AeTech," and "Free Military Training." The first activity, "Oplan Pagbasa at KwentuJuan," will consist of eight sessions aimed at teaching the Aetas how to read. This will help improve their literacy skills and enable them to access educational resources. The second activity, "AeTech," will also consist of eight sessions, aimed at teaching the Aetas about technology and how to register their SIM card. This will enable them to communicate with the outside world and access online educational resources. The third activity, "Free Military Training," will provide the Aetas with training in military skills, which will help improve their confidence and self-reliance. This training will also help prepare them to defend their communities against any external threats. The project will begin on May 19, 2023, and run until August 18, 2023. The aim of the project is to empower the Aetas by providing them with the necessary tools and skills to access education and improve their quality of life. By doing so, the project hopes to promote ethical values and student mobility among the Aetas and create a brighter future for them.

Planning
Background	The Aetas are among the most marginalized and underserved communities in the country. One of the major challenges they face is the issue of poor literacy rates. This is due to several factors, including a lack of access to education, poverty, and cultural barriers. Many Aeta communities live in remote areas such as Sitio Haduan with no schools, making it difficult for children to attend classes regularly. In addition, poverty forces many Aeta children to drop out of school and work to support their families. Finally, cultural differences and language barriers also contribute to low literacy rates, as many Aetas speak their own dialects and have different cultural practices that are not necessarily reflected in the mainstream education system. As a result, the Aeta population is severely disadvantaged in terms of education and literacy, which has a significant impact on their overall socio-economic status and quality of life.

	Their relative importance

- Occular Visitation and Research - This task is critical in understanding the needs and situation of the Aetas, which will inform the planning and execution of the relief efforts.
- Assign Different Committee - This task is essential in organizing and delegating responsibilities among the organization members, ensuring that everyone is working towards a common goal.
- Prepare the Teaching Materials and Lesson Plan - This task is vital in providing educational support to the young Aetas, which can help improve their long-term prospects and opportunities.
- Pack the Relief Goods and Hygiene Kits - This task is essential in providing immediate relief to the Aetas, addressing their basic needs for food, shelter, and sanitation.
- Coordinate to the NSTP Coordinator for the donations - This task is crucial in securing the necessary resources and funding to support the relief efforts.
- Coordinate to the Externals Office for the Possible Sponsors and Contributors - This task can help expand the pool of resources available to the relief efforts.
- Coordinate to the Airforce for the Transportation Vehicle - This task is essential in ensuring the efficient and timely delivery of the relief goods and supplies.
- Coordinate to the LYDO for the Assistance - This task can provide additional support and resources to the relief efforts.
- Prepare the food(Meryenda) of the young Aetas - While important in providing immediate sustenance, this task is of lower priority than those related to education and immediate relief. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Prepare the Books donated by JCI - While valuable in supporting the educational needs of the Aetas, this task is of lower priority than those related to immediate relief and preparation.
